UAB offers

- workshops
- edible city tours
- community building

UAB is committed to the entire regional food cycle - from seed to recycling. In all phases of the cycle, different projects are active, which UAB supports with knowledge, workshops, PR, connections, and much more.

Urban Roots helps gardeners, especially balcony gardeners, to get their veggies growing.

At the Swiss seed bank you can book once a month a rendez-vous and bring your open-pollinated seeds and/or choose from a wide range of veggie, flower, shrub and tree seeds.

Most of the projects that have joined the UAB network deal with food cultivation.
For weekly / biweekly vegetable subscriptions some of the organisations offer different possibilities to pay: the suggested price , cost-based price, or even a labor-based subscription (i.e. 8h of hands-on field work.to get a small basket of veggies)

NUGLAR GÄRTEN

The Nuglar Gardens cultivate on 6 hectares of land vegetable and herb gardens, potato fields, fruit and berry groves. The project "Global field Nuglar" is providing interested school classes and the public interactive tours resp. workshops to understand how much land it takes to grow which quantity of crops, to meet the yearly nutritional needs of every human being on the planet.

LECKERACKER BÄUMLIHOF

The "Lecker-Acker Bäumlhof" is a communal field where families, shared households, school classes, kindergardens and interested private individuals are offered a piece of agricultural land for their own use. Here you can help with gardening with children.

RADSCHAFT

Organic waste does not belong in the trash, but should be recycled. Radschaft therefore offers interested households the collection of compost by bicycle and at the same time supplies them with products from local producers and stores. In this way, biowaste is utilized as a resource in the form of fertilizer and local, sustainable products find their way to the consumer.

LOKAL

The LOKAL is a grocery store that sells clean and fair food from small-scale agriculture and smaller manufacturers from the surrounding area.

NETZBON

For 14 years, the NetzBon has been the alternative currency in the Basel area. The NetzBon can be easily purchased at several locations or online. 1 NetzBon = 1 franc. Whoever uses the NetzBon they support a network of over 130 local, social and ecological businesses and organizations.

distribution

FOODSHARING

Foodsharing is an initiative against food waste. As a food saver, food can be saved and either consumed yourself, or bring it to a fair distributor. There, the food can be picked up free of charge. The FairTeiler of Basel is located at Werkhof.
